

STARLAB is a successful, fast-growing and innovative company. We are looking for people in the following roles to join our dedicated and friendly team:

AREA ACCOUNT MANAGERS

Our team of sales specialists is responsible for the promotion and sale of all our products. Working closely with customers, STARLAB's Account Managers are personable, enthusiastic and professional individuals who implement sales programs and generate sales leads while achieving set targets.

STARLAB is seeking self-motivated candidates with a science degree or equivalent. Previous experience within a scientific research environment is an advantage, while the desire to work hard and succeed in a competitive market is essential. Candidates must also hold a full driving licence.

PIPETTE SERVICING TECHNICIANS

STARLAB's technicians service, repair and calibrate most popular makes of automatic pipette, both in-house and on-site at customers' premises throughout the UK.

Servicing is carried out to manufacturer's specifications following UKAS and ISO accredited procedures. No previous experience is necessary as full training will be given, but candidates must be able to follow technical instructions, have an eye for detail and be at ease handling small components. Basic keyboard skills are also required, as well as dealing with customers in a professional manner.

UK travel will be necessary, so a full driving licence is essential.

If you think you have what it takes and are interested in a career with STARLAB, please send your CV and a covering letter to:

Denise Fane de Salis

UK Sales & Marketing Manager

dfanedesalis@starlab.co.uk